GLOBAL DISABILITY & AGEING NEWS

National Disability Strategy

The National Disability Strategy sets out a ten year national plan for improving life for Australians with disability, their families and carers. It represents a commitment by all levels of government, industry and the community to a unified, national approach to policy and program development. This new approach will assist in addressing the challenges faced by people with disability, both now and into the future.

The Commonwealth, State and Territory and Local Governments have developed the Strategy in partnership under the auspices of the Council of Australian Governments (COAG). The Strategy is the result of a large nation-wide public consultation process, involving more than 2,500 people and was formally endorsed by COAG on 13 February 2011.

The Strategy is a ten year plan that sets out six priority areas for action to improve the lives of people with disabilities, their families and carers. These are:

- Inclusive and accessible communities—the physical environment including public transport; parks, buildings and housing; digital information and communications technologies; civic life including social, sporting, recreational and cultural life.
- Rights protection, justice and legislation—statutory protections such as anti-discrimination measures, complaints mechanisms, advocacy, the electoral and justice systems.
- Economic security—jobs, business opportunities, financial independence, adequate income support for those not able to work, and housing.
- Personal and community support—inclusion and participation in the community, person-centred care and support provided by specialist disability services and mainstream services; informal care and support.
- Learning and skills—early childhood education and care, schools, further education, vocational education; transitions from education to employment; life-long learning.
- Health and wellbeing—health services, health promotion and the interaction between health and disability systems; wellbeing and enjoyment of life.

The National Disability Strategy will guide public policy across governments and aims to bring about change in all mainstream services and programs as well as community infrastructure. It is the first time the Commonwealth, State and Territory Governments have agreed to such a wide ranging set of directions for disability.

Alarming figures on aged care supply and demand

A new report released today forecasts that demand for residential and community aged care services in Australia will greatly outstrip supply over the next 40 years, driven mainly by the increasing prevalence of dementia and an outdated planning policy. Based on current government policy, the shortfall could be as many as 279,000 aged care places nationwide by 2050, according to the report, which took into account places in high and low care as well as CACP, EACH and EACH-D packages. ## GLOBAL DISABILITY & AGEING FEATURED ORGANISATION

International Disability Alliance (IDA)

<http://www.internationaldisabilityalliance.org/>

IDA promotes the effective and full implementation of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities worldwide, as well as compliance with the CRPD within the UN system, through the active and coordinated involvement of representative organisations of persons with disabilities at national, regional and international levels.

Established in 1999, the International Disability Alliance (IDA) is the network of global and regional organizations of persons with disabilities (DPOs) promoting the effective implementation of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. IDA currently comprises eight global and four regional DPOs, with two other regional DPOs having observer status.

With member organizations around the world, IDA represents the estimated 650 million people worldwide living with a disability. This is the world's largest – and most frequently overlooked – minority group.

Disability Rights Bulletin

The Disability Rights Bulletin is a regular bulletin produced by IDA and intended for experts advocating for the rights of persons with disabilities, in particular within the Geneva-based global human rights machinery.

Disability Discrimination Commissioner released a guideline that will assist building professionals

Disability Discrimination Commissioner, Graeme Innes, released a guideline that will assist building professionals and those concerned with access to better understand how the Premises Standards apply to new and upgraded public buildings.

The Disability (Access to Premises – buildings) Standards 2010 (the Premises Standards) commence on 1 May 2011.

Disability \(Access to Premises - buildings\) Standards 2010

"There is no doubt that the commencement of the Premises Standards will herald the most important and widespread improvements in building access Australia has ever seen in terms of improvements in the accessibility and safety of all new and upgraded public buildings", said Commissioner Innes. "These changes to the way buildings are designed and built will improve the opportunities for people with disability to participate in and contribute to the economic, cultural, social and political life of our community as equal citizens", the Commissioner said.

Commissioner Innes said that the changes will benefit every Australian and help in creating a more sustainable built environment capable of responding to our changing circumstances and our family and community needs.

Their introduction will in many cases require the development of new skills, knowledge and approaches by those in the building industry including developers, designers, architects, builders, project managers, certifiers and building operators.

The Guideline on the application of the Premises Standards is available online at

GLOBAL DISABILITY & AGEING GUIDE TO POLICIES & GUIDELINES

UN Women to strengthen its work on women with disabilities

The recently created UN Women will expand its partnerships with the private sector and others to further include women with disabilities. Ms. Michelle

Bachelet, the new Under-Secretary-General and Executive Director of the organization, highlighted women with disabilities in her speech at the opening of the First Regular Session of the Executive Board of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) on 24 January 2011. In her statement, she recognized that since much of the work of UN Women will be to stimulate and support others to do what needs to be done, UN Women will build partnerships with Governments and civil society, with parliamentarians and community based leaders, targeting groups that are most excluded, including women with disabilities. ### World Social Security Report 2010/11. Providing coverage in times of crisis and beyond

This is the first in a new series of biennial reports that aim to map social security coverage globally, to presenting various methods and approaches for assessing coverage, and to identifying gaps in coverage. Backed by much comparative statistical data, this first report takes a comprehensive look at how countries are investing in social security, how they are financing it, and how effective their approaches are. The report examines the ways selected international organizations (the EU, OECD and ADB) monitor social protection and the correlation of social security coverage and the ILO Decent Work Indicators. The report's final section features a typology of national approaches to social security, with a focus on countries' responses to the economic crisis of 2008 -- and the lessons to be learned, especially concerning the short- and long-term management of pension schemes.

Launch of the first World Disability Report on 9 June at UN Headquarters

The CRPD has drawn global attention to the situation of persons with disabilities in their societies and mandates States parties to address these issues. A new publication, the first ever World Report on Disability, produced jointly by the World Health Organization and the World Bank, reviews evidence about the global situation of persons with disabilities, and offers directions for policy and practice to address exclusion. The report contains chapters on health; rehabilitation; assistance and support; enabling environments; education; and employment. Importantly, the report also includes the first new disability prevalence estimates since the 1970s and makes the case for better data collection. This pioneering report demonstrates how removing barriers, investing in rehabilitation and more accessible environments can enable millions of persons with disabilities to participate in education, employment and wider society. At the intersection of human rights, development, public health and disability studies, the World Report on Disability is an important publication for policy-makers, professionals, persons with disabilities and their families.
